WE NOMINATE

Phyllis Halcomb Craig, the "idea man" and guiding force behind the University League Cooperative Nursery School, which in the week ahead will quietly celebrate the tenth anniversary of its founding as one of Princeton's most distinctive—and delightful—educational enterprises. Tucked away in a corner of the University Campus, almost in the shadows of Palmer Stadium and overlooking the "Keg Hollow" of yesteryear, this 50-member pre-school occupies the one "Little Red Schoolhouse" in the Ivy League and ranks as a "bright spot" in the opinions of nationally recognized authorities in the field of nursery education.

The development of "ULCNS" is rooted in the beliefs, contagious enthusiasms and efforts of its founding and present head teacher-director. (Mrs. Gordon Alexander Craig), 41-year old mother of four youngsters, ranging from an 18-year old daughter in the High School's senior class to an 18-month old son. In 1948, at the start of Princeton's post-war population boom and some four years after she had organized a play-group on the third floor of a Bayard Lane walk-up, she conceived the idea of a nursery school for children of members of the University.

Mrs. Craig, Long Island-born, Pennsylvania-bred and trained as a nursery and remedial teacher in this country and England, enlisted the help of friends on the Board of the University League (wives of faculty and administrative members). The school's organization meeting brought a turn-out of 50 parents, more than enough to convince husbands "in power" of the importance of extending university support to the venture. In September, 1949, the school opened in "Libbey House," from where it moved to its present location in 1951 with the University's sale of "Libbey House" to Miss Mason's School.

From the beginning (and some 800 children from nearly 400 university families have now been "graduated" from "ULCNS"), the school has run on a co-operative basis, with fathers doing the heavy work and mothers assisting their children's teachers. The family approach to education has kept tuition low, while providing manpower (both skilled and unskilled) for renovating a building and constructing equipment, and —most important, according to Mrs. Craig—"has given the parents the opportunity to share this first school experience with their young children and their friends."

The school's appealing quarters, once a drab Army barracks, which was used by Navy personnel in the 1940's, document the innate, and unsuspected, capacities of a faculty of teacher-scholars. Engineers, philosophers, coaches, economists, historians and pioneers in the sciences have all done their part. Whether the fathers are working in the school's unique "noisy room," or putting a tree-house in place, Mrs. Craig, a leader in the N. J. Association for Nursery Education and a founding director of Princeton's Council of Community Services, is ready with the next project, possibly a "water table" or rope-climbing apparatus.

For developing a school program that enables each participant, adult and youngster alike, "to have a wonderful time, to learn a little and to grow richer in his appreciation of life and its great opportunities"; for constantly seeking as a dedicated teacher "to make every word and action count"; she is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

SCHOOL SEEKS A HOME

As Rose Cottage Is Condemned. "The use of this building should be prohibited without further delay. Any attempt to restore the structure would be economically unsound."

This one-two punch, forming the conclusion of a detailed report submitted by the Borough Engineer's office, served as the knock-out blow this week to a Princeton tradition that dates back to the late 18th century. Rose Cottage, (see picture, page 3) a Stockton Street landmark for more than 150 years, is considered to be in a "state of deterioration beyond restoration" and has been ordered evacuated by its two groups of tenants.

Primary victim — because no one home of even a temporary nature has been found for it — is the Princeton Cooperative Nursery School. Its score of children have been meeting this week in homes of various parents, and will continue to shuttle back and forth from one location to another until a more permanent solution can be found.

Better off — if only temporarily — are the dancing classes taught in Rose Cottage by Mrs. Audrey Estey. The basement of McCarter Theatre has been made available to her and her pupils until the end of the spring term.

The report from the Borough Engineer's office (filed by Robert H. Albrecht, newly-appointed assistant to I. Russell Riker) provided clear indication that the one-story frame structure was no longer usable. In some places, floor girders and beams are no longer supported by stone and mortar; floor, columns and roof all show signs of settlement; and advanced signs of wood rotting in wood timbers are evident.

Roof Could Collapse. Leaks exist in the roof, the survey revealed, allowing water to enter outside walls and partitions. "Under no conditions," Mr. Albrecht reported, "should the building be used by anyone when a snow load exists on the roof similar to those experienced last March."

The latest survey underscores the accuracy of findings of an earlier check made three years ago by George C. Knaefler, an official of the Matthews Construction Co. who is one of three trustees of the Swann Estate. The trustees (David R. Winans and William M. Sloane are the others) serve without compensation under terms of the will of Mrs. Josephine Thompson Swann, who left Rose Cottage, Thompson — now Borough — Hall and grounds to the people of Princeton.

While the Swann trustees and other Princetonians have long been aware of the part that Rose Cottage plays in the community — both picturesque and utilitarian — the dollar sign has always been the stumbling block to rehabilitation. The Swann estate has no funds for such a project and it has not been considered logical to use the taxpayers' money.

A year ago, the Princeton Junior Chamber of Commerce studied the Cottage's plight in some detail. Restoration was eventually abandoned, however, as impractical and inordinately expensive.

Mrs. George M. Grace of Pretty Brook Road, chairman of the Cooperative Nursery School, was first informed on Saturday that Rose Cottage was to be immediately abandoned. A possibility exists that the school may be able to use the new Italian-American Sportsmen's Club on Terhune Road, but no final decision has been reached.

Parents of pupils, who contribute their time and experience to solve many of the school's operating and administrative problems, have held one session this week to discuss the future. A small but firmly-established part of the Princeton educational scene for the past dozen years, the school will welcome all possible suggestions for a new home.

Check Stubs Answer These Questions:

To whom paid?... For what?... When?... How Much?

Some people think the best reason for having a Checking Account is the way the check stubs keep a record of every cent paid out. They know, too, that paying by check saves time and steps, and that the record on the check stub discourages over-spending.

Mather To Leave Council

Meurice A. Mather has tendered his resignation as a member of Borough Council because he plans to become a resident of Princeton Township. Mayor Raymond F. Male said that Council will act shortly to appoint a successor.

Appreciation was expressed this week by the Mayor for Councilman Mather's service, particularly as Fire Commissioner. A new fire code was written while he was in office, a survey of existing equipment completed and a new truck (see page 15) has been purchased. He has been a member of the governing body since January 1, 1956, and his three-year term expires next December.

Under New Jersey law, Council will name a successor to serve for the balance of 1959. If the Democratic majority follows political tradition by appointing a member of its own party to replace Mr. Mather, who is a Republican, it will have the first 5-1 edge it has enjoyed within memory. Councilman Alfred E. Sorenson is now the only Republican on Council.

HOSPITAL FACES PROBLEMS

"Financial Straight-Jacket." Princeton Hospital has been placed in a "financial straight-jacket" by a combination of factors, President John H. Wallace Jr. told the annual meeting of the Hospital Corporation Monday night. Singled out for criticism by both Mr. Wallace and other officers of the corporation were the Blue Cross plan, several tight-fisted municipalities and the Mercer County Board of Freeholders.

The hospital has been losing $2.44 per day on patients using the Hospital Service Plan of New Jersey (Blue Cross), according to the president. He criticized both the board of trustees of Blue Cross and the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking for New Jersey for permitting such a situation to exist.

Of all the municipalities which use the hospital for care of their socially and medically indigent, only Princeton Borough and Township and West Windsor Township have been paying their "fair share" of the cost, Mr. Wallace said. "If the other municipalities of this county and the county government itself do not accept their moral and legally-permissible responsibilities, the Board of Trustees of this hospital may find it necessary to take drastic steps toward remedying the over-all problem," he declared.

In addition, residents of outlying municipalities have not made contributions to carry "even a small part of the burden which they are causing." The president explained that this has been obvious in the drive for funds for the proposed nursing school and will become serious if it continues in future campaigns.

Conover Adds Criticism. George W. Conover, treasurer of the hospital corporation, supported Mr. Wallace with some figures and added some strong statements of his own. Again, the major problems outlined in his report were those of the Blue Cross plan and the insufficient contributions by other governing groups for the socially and medically indigent.

Of the total of just over $142,000 which went for the care of those unable to pay, Princeton Borough and Township and West Windsor Township contributed nearly $50,000, with Mercer county adding $47,450. Mr. Conover claimed that the net deficit of almost $13,000 would have been substantially larger "if it had not been for the adequate support" of these three municipalities."

"I take this opportunity to demand publicly that the elected officials of the responsible municipalities in this county take note of a deplorable situation," he charged. "It is unbelievable to me that the county Board of freeholders and the leaders in many municipalities can close their eyes to the medical needs of the socially and medically indigent when they make provisions in every other area of economy," he stated.

The total loss on the Blue Cross plan was more than $83,000 over the year, Mr. Conover revealed. He laid this situation to "an apparently misinformed Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, or one who yielded to other pressure than those exerted by representatives of the hospital field, and the shortsightedness of the board of trustees of the Hospital Service Plan of New Jersey.

Ceiling Hurts Hospital. As outlined by Mr. Wallace, the basic problem with Blue Cross is that the Commissioner for Insurance and Banking put a ceiling on the amount the plan can pay a hospital for care of patients using the insurance program. The $30 upper limit is less than the average daily cost rendered to Blue Cross subscribers, and these costs cannot be cut down by anything approaching the loss of $2.44 a day. Officers of Blue Cross have not taken a stand to remedy the situation.

Expanding on the president's statement, Mr. Conover explained that the payng patient and other contributors are effectively subsidizing the Blue Cross subscriber. He emphasized that "the continued solvency of your Hospital depends on immediate recognition of the problem by government and Blue Cross and the presentation of a solution to this defict financing."

Women Aid Hospital

The 406-member Women's Auxiliary of Princeton Hospital contributed valuable help in the form of time and funds over the past year, Mrs. David B. Miller, auxiliary president, announced that the auxiliary raised just over $20,000 in 1958 and contributed a total of 19,000 volunteer hours.

The two biggest fund-raising events were the Hospital Fete last June, which netted $10,200, and the Golf Day at Forsgate last September, which brought in another $8,000, according to Mrs. Miller's annual report. These funds were used for the library, the cast room, and recreational materials for the patients.

The Hospital Aid Committee reported gross sales of $12,850 from the Hospital Aid Shop, and a yield of over $4500 from two rummage sales. Members of this committee contributed 14,000 volunteer hours, while other volunteer work was done by the Nurse's Aides and the Gray Ladies.

In the same vein, hospital administrator John W. Kauffman added his belief that "Blue Cross can no longer afford the luxury of offering its subscribers all-inclusive services for which it is unable to pay. He predicted in his report that commercial insurance or government will take over "unless those responsible for Blue Cross take emergency steps to revise their contract to operate within the limits of their financial ability.

The hospital administrator stated that the attitude of municipal and county officials will force aid for the medically and socially indigent onto a state-administered basis. Also, he predicted that such attitudes will create pressure to change the law from permissive to mandatory.

Costs to Rise. Mr. Kauffman added an observation that "the high cost of hospital care is going higher." This increase, which will probably run from five to ten percent annually, is due to the high cost of progress in scientific medicine and the upward spiral of wages and salaries, he explained.

In addition, the hospital may again be forced to expand its capacity, since the occupancy of the present capacity, planned to be adequate through 1962, is already over the safe limit of 85 percent, according to president Wallace. The rapid increase in the size experienced by the hospital was underscored by Mr. Kauffman with figures showing that disbursements have increased from almost $33,500 in 1920 to a present total of almost $1,600,000.

On the brighter side, Dr. Jeanette Munro, president of the medical staff, listed three important accomplishments for 1958: the awarding of a full accreditation to the hospital after an inspection last summer; the establishment of a two-year residency program in general practice; and the laying of the ground work for the training school for practical nursing.

The treasurer, Mr. Conover, announced that occupancy of Merwick in the final quarter of 1958 was such that the nursing home became a self-supporting unit. Also during 1958, the hospital installed machine payroll accounting and inaugurated a courtesy charge plate system.

MARCH MARATHON

Five Public Hearings. On the basis of Tuesday evening's special session of Mayor and Council, largely devoted to passage on first reading of a series of amendments to the Borough Parking Ordinance, the stated March meeting (Tuesday, March 10) already looms as an all-time endurance contest—even for a Council well acclimatized to long-winded gatherings.

Meriting top-billing next month will be the public hearing on the "no-fat" 1959 budget, followed by discussion of "an ordinance to regulate the keeping of dogs and to prohibit the keeping of dogs not inoculated against rabies" and three major parking regulations, one of which may well be challenged by commuting Princetonians.

This week Council took direct aim on increasingly congested University Place, electing to meter the artery from Edwards Place to College Road on a short-time basis and also to install 71 all-day meters on the McCarter Theatre side of the "Station Area," from College Road around to Alexander Street.

The proposed regulation, offering all-day parkers 10 hours of station-area space for 25c (same as the prevailing rate at the Junction and in keeping with new all-day scale in the Trinity Parking Lot), will mean the installation of new meters at a total cost of some $3,500.

More Parking News. The ill-fated experiment with meter-enforced parking Friday evenings in the Borough's central business district, condemned in recent weeks by both businessmen and consumers, officially passed into oblivion—at least on first reading, without a dissenting voice.

While the two-hour parking regulation was retained on Bayard Lane from the First Church of Christ, Scientist, to Hodge Road, all other parking on the west side (from Hodge Road down the hill to the Borough line) was banned. No parking has been permitted on the east side of Bayard Lane for the past several years.

Appointments. Three active former fire chiefs, Walter P. Foley (Engine Company No. 1), Carl C. Schafer (Hook and Ladder and Chemical No. 1) and Joseph J. Stemmle (Mercer Engine Company No. 3) were confirmed as members of the newly-created five-member Fire Prevention Bureau.

Mrs. Lillian C. Smith, 132 John Street, was named a member of the Local Assistance Board, succeeding the late Oscar Wright, while Peter T. Basilk, a law associate of Borough Attorney John F. McCarthy Jr. and an alumnus of St. Joseph's College and the University of Pennsylvania Law School, was designated Assistant Borough Attorney, a post in which he will serve without Borough compensation.

Americana. Mayor Male reported that the Princeton Community may well be featured on a CBS coast-to-coast radio documentary on the "importance of civil defense." The producers of the program, scheduled for March presentation, have typed Princeton as the "typical American town" and spent several hours here over the weekend.

Miscellany. Following Councilman Coyle's report on the "imminent retirement" of Rose Cottage (see page 11 as a gathering-place for groups of any size, Mayor Male and William M. Sloane, one of the three trustees of the Swann Estate, discussed the possibility of an early joint meeting of the "Town Fathers" and the Swann Trustees to discuss the long-range use of Thomson (Borough) Hall.

Thomson Hall and the adjoining property, including Rose Cottage and the American Legion Building facing on Mercer Street, were bequeathed to the borough as a town hall and park but are administered by the trustees of the Swann Estate, from whom the municipality has long rented its executive offices.

MASTER PLAN: II

Township Roads. A network consisting of new roads, old roads and alignments of old roads has been suggested for Princeton Township. The recommendations come from the Sub-Committee on Engineering and Public Safety of the Citizens Advisory Committee to the Township Planning Board.

The Committee, under its chairman, John Diehl, proposes a peripheral road system looping around the Township in this fashion:

- From Terhune Road and its proposed extension to a future parkway which would begin near Township Hall, with a rotary-type intersection where Valley Road, Mt. Lucas Road and Route 206 now meet. (The Township Garage would be in the middle of such a new intersection.) A civic area could then grow up around Township Hall.
- From Township Hall west and then south, connecting Rosedale Road to Lawrenceville Road, circling west to avoid two difficult topographical features: the lowlands of Stony Brook and the heights of Breuer's Hill.
- From Lawrence Road to Mercer Road, crossing Stony Brook by a new bridge. Mercer Road would be realigned and the Mercer-Quaker complex consolidated to be safer than it now is. (The Committee does not recommend the demolition of the present Stony Brook Bridge on Mercer Road, merely its "retirement.")
- From Mercer south of the Institute for Advanced Study, to a new Alexander Street bridge system involving a realignment of Alexander.
- Across Route One to a proposed new road system in West Windsor Township, which would be built on land owned by the University, then to a bridge over the Millstone, along the south side of Lake Carnegie to Kingston and thence back to Terhune Road. (The Committee also recommends the "retirement" of the Kingston Bridge and construction of a new one at another location.)

Where Accidents Occur. Two important areas need major attention, according to the report. They are the intersection of Ewing and State Road, which has the highest accident rate of any Township intersection, and the sharp curving grade on The Great Road beyond Tenacre, which has the second highest Township accident rate.

The Committee recommends that the Ewing intersection be "improved" and the Great Road be completely realigned between Tenacre and Drakes Corner Road.

The Research Park zone should be extended, the Committee believes, so that it would include the area behind Mount Lucas Road, houses all the way east to the Trinity Church property on Van Dyke Road, and north toward Route 206. This area would Speaking of snowflakes, there's been a real shortage this winter. The Man reports that whereas this area normally gets some 23 inches during the season, only 4.4 has been recorded to date. Another March blizzard due?

Well, not this weekend, anyway. Sunday is March 1, but nothing out of the ordinary is in sight. Fair and cool Thursday and Friday, with Saturday offering a chance of rain. Sunday: partly cloudy and milder.

THEATRE ON THE ROAD

Players to Troupe "Milkwood." After a thoroughly successful three week-end run at their own Playmill, the Princeton Community Players have been asked to move their entire production of the Dylan Thomas "Under Milkwood" for a two-performance stand Saturday, March 7, at the Red Mill in Tinton Falls. Advance men for the company, David Lai and Byron Keene for lighting, and set designer Jacques Kupferman have made plans for adapting the Princeton production to the smaller stage. The Red Mill is a 17th century structure used as art gallery and ballet studio as well as for theatrical productions.

Only major changes necessary in the cast have been one woman's part, still uncast and a narrator, the First Voice, originally played by Michael Glenn. Director John Becker after a fruitless attempt to find a replacement for the all-important role came up with the decision: "I'm as much of a 'ham' as anybody; I'd love to do it."

The troupe, including the ten members of the Junior Players in the cast, will leave for Tinton Falls (near Red Bank) in time for one rehearsal on the new stage before the matinee and evening shows. Only a short hour's drive from Princeton, the Tinton Falls performances afford an opportunity for theatre goers who missed the Playmill dates to see the Players in one of the most outstanding productions in many years.

Productions, the undergraduate group sponsoring the singers, who are on a whirl-wind personal appearance tour particularly in college towns, announced that all tickets are sold for the one-night stand. Last month, actor Emlyn Williams presenting a Dylan Thomas program in McCarter Theatre did as well for the young entrepreneurs.

Another one man show, "An Evening with Carl Sandburg," a long-established American tradition, will be third on Dana Productions' season appearing in Alexander Hall the evening of Wednesday, March 25. Mr. Sandburg, who it is said has not before appeared publicly in Princeton, has just made another "first" in his Lincoln's Birthday address before a joint session of Congress.

Long known as a national poet "the raw boned minstrel of America" is thought by many to have made his greatest contribution to American literature with the six-volume life of Lincoln. Twice winner of the Pulitzer Prize, Mr. Sandburg at 81 maintains an active schedule of speaking engagements and television appearances.

Doing much to alleviate the "theatre famine" caused by the McCarter blackout, Dana Productions plans one more offering in the spring. Tickets for Carl Sandburg are not reserved and are available at The University Store and by mail from 28 Campbell Hall, Princeton campus.

THEATRICAL NOSTALGIA

Collection Full of Memories. Possibly the old ticket stubs in your overcoat pocket wouldn't count, but if you are in the habit of saving your theatre programs or clipping reviews of the plays you've seen, you are on your way towards starting a theatre collection. Just such a propensity for "saving things" over his lifetime as actor and stage manager led to the William Seymour Theatre Collection now housed on the second floor of Firestone Library. Presented to the University in 1936 the masses of papers, letters, diaries came the following year into the enthusiastic and knowledgeable care of Mrs. Herbert McAneny, present curator of the collection.

This week in Philadelphia, Mrs. McAneny, former Barnard drama teacher and associate of Charles Frohman, addressed the national Theatre Library Association of which she is vice-president on the background and aims of the collection. An exhibit of Gertrude Stein and the theatre opens this Friday, following a display of the 65-year history of the Triangle Club.

Anything today that collects in our attic-less houses ends on the curb for the paper drive, but in Mrs. Seymour's day there was room for hoarding. The papers, never sorted, arrived in Princeton stuffed into boxes in an exciting jumble. But Stage Manager Seymour himself was a painstaking man.

He kept a careful diary of his years at the Boston Museum, a theatre that piously operated under the guise of a zoological museum, noting that the weather was good on a particular night in 1890, the house fair and the curtain came down at 10:34. Did you know that a stage electrician of the time received $1 for a performance?

Property lists were sent ahead for Sara Bernhardt's American appearances; one reads, "Four chairs, handsome" to be ready for her arrival. This is the kind of precise record kept by the 19th century theatrical figure whose children directed the vast memorabilia of his life to Princeton.

Theatrical Tradition Strong. The theatre runs strong in the Seymour family. Son of actor parents, husband of actress May Davenport whose sister was the famous Fanny, father of two actors and of May Seymour, curator of a similar collection at the Museum of the City of New York, his granddaughter, Anne Seymour, currently appears on Broadway, playing the President's wife in "Sunrise at Campobello."

Another daughter is Mrs. Richard Field, wife of the retired Princeton professor. Incidental Princeton note: the first meeting of the now 26-year old Princeton Community Players was held at their house.

Additions have been made to the collection, scrap books filled with memories of theatre parties donated by individuals; current Playbills from all Broadway shows and a great deal of material covering summer theatre projects. The Princeton alumni sons of Joseph McCaddon, long-

WHERE'S JOAN?

Down the Street. If you think of the corner of Hulfish and Palmer Square West in terms of the high finance practiced there during the tenure of Laidlaw and Company, you may be surprised to see the place now. Instead of the mellow charm of a Dow-Jones average, you will find green and purple chintz, pine settees, white shuttered doors, philodendron, dacron and cotton. The Joan Shop has moved in.

Two peaks stand out in high fashion this spring: the shirtwaist dress and hopsacking. (So far as our limited experience goes, not combined.)

The shirtwaist at The Joan Shop is royal purple and dark green in rippling stripe, or a paler version in powder blue and chartreuse. This dress is only one example, of course. There are prim shirtwaists in pin-dotted white, dressed-up shirtwaists in silk, semi-formals in dacron and cotton, everydays in cotton.

Hopsacking (strong, rough basket-weave cotton, in case you've never picked hops) has been used in a straight, short raglan blouse with black-outlined rust and gold roses printed on it. Black piping rims the boat neck and short sleeves (Blue roses, if you prefer).

Then there are hopsacking shorts in bright stripes, an orange tropical print or a plain ole olive drab. You'll also find more conservative floral prints in the shorts department. These are cotton shorts with tasteful little daises, and so on.

For suit-buyers, there is a classic "Princeton" tweed, and a violet and turquoise shadow plaid with a short, fat jacket stroked with a bow. Suits have the season's wide collar, almost a Bertha in some cases. How about a blackie trimmed with monkey fur? Wear it with a jade cigarette holder.

Cole of California has sundresses that make you long for a heat wave. One is blue and aqua and shagbark plaid, another is white jersey with a bright and dark green jungle print and shoulder ties.

For a spring coat, The Joan Shop suggests jersey with ribbed knit sleeve. Comes in grey, royal, red, rust, with matching hat. For lingerie, a pale blue short gown gathered over a pale yellow under-pinning and banded with a three-inch neck ruffle that is also the sleeve.

Like those Joan Shop windows? They were done by decorator Cay Mohrman.

Top Burner. Need a new kitchen? There's a dandy one at Nassau Service on State Road. It's a model which has been assembled to show you what can be done in the way of a new kitchen, and if you need a new cooking center, you can talk over your problem with Nassau Service, and use the complete free, kitchen-planning facilities offered by the appliance center.

The kitchen now on display is 12 feet long. It consists of a Thermidor wall oven (with optional rotisserie), cook top with griddle, Kitchenaid under-the-counter dishwasher, stainless sink and cupboards above and below.

In the cupboard over the oven, above the height of the average housewife, there is a deep, dead storage cupboard with a lazy susan shelf. The drawers in all cupboards glide out on nylon bearings. Below the burners, there are pull-out shelves so that you don't have to stand on your head to get at the oatmeal. There are pull-out towel racks, soap racks, cup racks and adjustable shelves.

The man who pays the bill will be interested in the black duct-

And Old Lace

Fine linens and heirloom lace are not things you toss in the washing machine and do up, hit or miss, with a scruffy old iron and an amateur standing as a laundress. The Laundromat Center on Leigh Avenue now has four specialists who do finished work, concentrating on those difficult pieces that you can't do properly yourself.

Curtains with ruffles, for example. Or an heirloom lace banquet cloth, probably used only for weddings, christenings and stag poker parties. Embroidered linens that need padding under the iron cloth—you know the kind of delicate pieces Laundromat has in mind. All this work is handdone here in Princeton. (Even shirts can be hand-finished if you like.)

The Center on Leigh Avenue now has a pick-up and delivery service for customers in Borough and Township. On finished work, you may have four-day service (three in emergencies.

less hood that goes over the burners. Use this hood and you won't have to cut a hole in your wall for a fan. The hood has twin fans that draw in the air. The air passes through an outer filter, then an inner charcoal filter and returns to the room as cool, fresh air.

At Nassau Service, the oven is copper enamel and the wooden cabinets are platinum satin. You may choose from eight other finishes, such as cocoa birch, sand, baked potato brown, and so on.

Chips. Cut from the same cloth, that's what they are. We speak of the mother-daughter dresses racked up at Allen's on Nassau Street. They come in all sizes.

One style is a cool shirtwaist which you'll buy now and save until you need a cool shirtwaist. It's a white with a fine blue stripe, and three-quarter puff sleeves with a wide panel of blue open-work embroidery from shoulder to sleeve hem. Dress comes with its own half slip. The little girls' dresses are identical.

time general manager of Barnum and Bailey, have presented material that is a circus fan's dream: photographs, posters, tour routes including schedules for shipping the circus by river boat.

Some years ago, Mrs. McAneny called on aging theatrical producer George Tyler. She had known him in his active Broadway years. He had given Helen Hayes her first part, produced Eugene O'Neil's first full-length play.

The records of those years were contained in his office files. No one seemed to care about them except Mrs. McAneny, who in three days of hard labor packed them herself to ship to Princeton. There was another section of theatre history saved.

But the bulk of material is from William Seymour's boxes, thousands of letters, an autograph hunter's paradise. Saved from his years as stage manager of the Metropolitan Opera House and theatres from New Orleans to Boston are instructions to the stage carpenters, cast lists, records of the vagaries of artistic temperment, who was late to rehearsal or sick for a performance or refused to learn his lines, and a mysterious code of his own which designated each night whether the house was enthusiastic, luke warm, or cool towards the company.

And from the pot to he scorned commercial angle Mr. Seymour bothered to save the cards exchanged in cigarettes (Sweet Caporal) with pictures of ladies of the theatre, as well as little buttons with heads of contemporary pinup girls which an admirer could wear. Possibly under his lapel?

Gifts, however, come from many sources. One will never be matched from a little old lady who had put together in scrap books photographs of every film actor in Hollywood.

She had been doggedly at it for 20 years, adding to the studio stills the actor's birthdate, carefully leaving space for the date of his demise. When she stopped because of failing eyesight, the William Seymour Collection received the lot — 98 volumes. In case you've forgotten how handsome Francis X. Bushman was, you're invited to go and look.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Separate Tables (February 25-March 3) is a happier screen adaptation of a work from another medium. The screenplay, by Terence Rattigan and John Gay, preserves the power of Rattigan's well-received Broadway play in recounting the story of a group of youngish to middle-aged neurotics who have gathered at a dingy seaside hotel on England's south coast. Deborah Kerr, a sensitive girl dominated by her mother, shares a pitiful love with David Niven, an ex-British Army major who boasts of his family background and wartime exploits in an effort to forget his basic ineffectuality. The hotel owner, Wendy Hiller, is infatuated with Burt Lancaster, who seeks therapy at a nearby pub for the scars of his marital break-up with Rita Hayworth. Mr. Lancaster is forced to come to grips with his problems when Miss Hayworth shows up with visions of reconciliation dancing in her head. His emotional upheaval is so profound that it spreads to the other unfortunates in the hotel and eventually points the way to a believable happy ending.

Director Delbert Mann has elicited memorable performances from the principals and from Cathleen Nesbitt, Gladys Cooper, Felix Aylmer and May Hallatt, who fill secondary roles to overflowing. The standout portrayal is delivered by Mr. Niven, the lecherous major whose boastful house of cards is toppled brutally but who manages to salvage some measure of true dignity from the wreckage. Mr. Lancaster is convincing as the sodden sufferer and Miss Hayworth turns in one of the better performances of her checkered career. "Separate Tables" was produced by Harold Hecht for Hecht, Hill and Lancaster. Recommended.

I Want to Live (March 4-7) is a searing quasi-documentary of the San Francisco murder trial and eventual execution of B-girl Barbara Graham in 1950. The straight documentary aspects of the film, however, are not permitted to obscure the fact that Hollywood has decided Miss Graham was not guilty as accused. This is a highly-charged filmic editorial which goes beyond the specific events of a single case to comment acidly on the whole practice of capital punishment. In the final scenes, when all appeals have failed but the movie-goer is convinced of Miss Graham's innocence, the macabre procedure of legalized killing is presented in horrifying detail.

Susan Hayward, who appears to be the first choice of producers when vice is in the offing, has the show to herself in the role of Miss Graham and she carries it off with skill and power. It is an actress' dream role and she explores it to the point where an onlooker can almost see an Oscar growing out of her carelessly held cocktail glass.

The film's musical score, by John Mandel, is a cinemiestore in its own right. Performed by a group of outstanding West Coast modern jazz musicians led by saxophonist Gerry Mulligan, it marks the first time that jazz exclusively has been used as a dramatic backdrop by Hollywood.

The music's validity for this purpose has, of course, already been demonstrated by the television show, "Peter Gunn," but its impact in "I Want to Live" is even more convincing. For obvious reasons, this film is not recommended for the "Howdy Doody" set, but serious movie-goers, as well as sensation-seekers, should find it of interest.

THE GARDEN

Windom's Way (February 26-28) is the latest grist from the mill of the Rank Organization, and when you hear that gong at the beginning you'll know it's the sound of that august group's cash register being opened. For this picture (or at least its outdoor scenes) was shot on location in Malay and when you see starving natives in this one, they are, by gum, real starving natives and not just cheap London extras. The story, and it is a better one than this skeleton rundown indicates, concerns a British doctor (Peter Finch) who directs a jungle hospital and become enmeshed in the controversies between the good guys — the natives — and the bad guys — the plantation owners.

The plot thickens, and almost coagulates, when a not-unexpected international triangle rears its ugly isosceles. Natasha Parry, Finch's good-hearted but shapely native nurse, finds herself deeply in love with him and is saddened when Mary Ure, his English but shapely estranged wife, returns to the jungle. Miss Parry, as the sensitive, dignified nurse, is the film's most quietly potent performer, but Director Ronald Neame has brought out the best in all the principals. The film is in color and the location shots are awe-inspiring.

Father Panchali (March 2-7) should remove the doubts of those who feared the Garden might turn into a museum of Brigitte Bardot oddities. The winner of five international grand prizes, including the Grand Prix at the Cannes Film Festival, this is one of the rare pictures to reach these shores from India. The story is a poignant slice of the life of a Brahmin working family: the mother, resigned to the harsh realities of her unlovely world; the father, who daydreams of possible better days ahead; an aged aunt, who calmly awaits death; and two youngsters.

The native cast performs with subtlety and feeling and Director Satyajit Ray, who also wrote the screenplay, evokes an atmosphere so genuine that the viewer can scarcely doubt that this is really the way of life in India. The photography by Subrata Mitra is brilliant, a tacit reminder that talent, not expensive equipment, is still the key quality of fine entertainment.

Ravi Shankar's musical score is appropriate and moving. This is one to see.

It's New To Us

Another style is a bandaana dress in navy or red and white with round, collarless neck, no sleeves and a white cord for a belt. White rick-rack trims hem, neck and sleeves. This one is $10.-98 in adult sizes, the other is $12.98.

Little girls — but not their mothers, this time — have lots of springy party clothes to choose from at Allen's.

Pink and white embroidery bands the hem of a white nylon and appears again on the lower edge of a deep square collar. The dress has a round neck and no sleeves: the lace edging of the collar softens the armhole line. There is a moss green velvet tie at the waist. A pink nylon has deeper pink embroidery all over its full skirt.

There are other dresses which, though not formal and full of embroidery, are still pretty enough to make the boys want to play postoffice.

One is cotton with a bodice made of circles of eyelet embroidery. It is pale blue with a full skirt and a lace-trimmed collar. Moss green and pink cross-stitched flowers bloom against the white background of a cotton dress. It has a high boat neck edged with tatting, and a little folded cummerbund in moss green.

A pink shirtwaist dress of dacron and cotton has pastel embroidery in stripes on its bodice.

be served by a major artery that would be an extension of Harrison Street North. It would connect with Route 206 near the airport.

Other proposed new roads:

An extension of Bayard Lane to connect with the Mt. Rose Road.

An extension of Springdale (If the Borough can be persuaded to put a road through Marquand Park.)

An extension of Ridgeview to emerge slightly west of Van Dyke.

A new east-west road crossing Route 206, Cherry Hill and the proposed Bayard Lane extension.

"We Have Conferred." In making its studies, Mr. Diehl said, the Sub-Committee conferred with Middlesex and Mercer County officials, with the Borough engineer, with the University and with officials of Lawrence and West Windsor Townships. Such conferences were necessary, Mr. Diehl pointed out because the Committee's recommendations involve so many other municipalities. For example, a plan for putting Province Line Road through involves the Township, the County and Lawrence Township.

Mr. Diehl said that the Master Plan probably won't assign priority to any components of the proposed new system. However, he suggested the possibility that the next step might be a road north of Community Gardens and Mountain Avenue.

RED CROSS NAMES KIND

To Head Canvass. Samuel M. Kind has been appointed chairman of the general canvass for members and funds by the Princeton chapter of the American Red Cross, it was announced by J. S. Hanks, general chairman of the 1959 drive. Mr. Kind is manager of LaVake-Reid's Jewelers.

"The Red Cross means a great deal to all of us," Mr. Kind said. "From first-hand experience I know how its work contributes to the morale of our armed forces. We are all aware of the many services the Red Cross carries on in our community."

Mr. Kind will be assisted by these commanders: Mrs. P. M. Nicholas, Mrs. Braxton Ellerbe,

Samuel M. Kind

Mrs. Henderson Talbott, Mrs. Leonard Kraus, Mrs. Thomas Boccanfusco, Mrs. N. B. Woodworth and Mrs. Harold Gulliksen.

FIRE DAMAGES HOME

On Grover Avenue. Fire that was discovered shortly before 7 o'clock Monday night caused several thousand dollars worth of damage to the ranch-style home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Marcus at 77 Grover Avenue. They were absent when neighbors spotted the flames in the garage attached to the single-level frame dwelling.

As a result, the fire had gained considerable headway before Princeton's three volunteer companies arrived on the scene. The blaze gutted the garage and burned off the roof, but was controlled before serious damage was done to the house. Smoke and water took their toll, however.

Principal loss was a freezer used by Mr. and Mrs. Marcus in their catering business and kept in the garage. Stainless steel accessory equipment was also destroyed. Fire Chief Walter L. Coan placed an estimate of $5,000 on the loss.

No official cause for the blaze was listed but township police advanced the theory that high-voltage wires leading into the garage might have started the fire. If they "arced," it was pointed out, molten copper might have set the wooden garage ablaze.

DOPE ADDICT JAILED

After Nassau Street Arrest. A Jersey City man, whose criminal record showed 17 previous convictions, received a jail sentence and fines totalling $240 in Borough Court Tuesday. In the same lengthy session, Magistrate Theodore T. Tams fined a Princetonian $225 for driving while under the influence of alcohol.

The latter was John Watson, 41, of 24 Dorann Avenue. In addition to the fine, he was given a 90-day suspended workhouse sentence and placed on probation for a year.

Herman J. Bell, 41, of Jersey City was arrested Sunday after he was found double-parked on Nassau Street, slumped over the wheel of his car. A needle for injection of narcotics was found in his possession, an offense which drew a year's term in the workhouse.

Magistrate Tams also fined him $240 for driving while under the influence of narcotics and failure to have a license in his possession. He will work off the fine at the rate of $5 a day in the workhouse.

Willie Hinton, 32, of 150 Witherspoon Street was taken into custody with Bell. He was charged with disorderly conduct and creating a disturbance and paid a $30 fine.

Charles J. Hudson, 21, 24 Bank Street, was fined $30 for leaving an unwanted ice box in a place accessible to children. It is believed to be the first sentence of its kind imposed here.

In motor vehicle cases, J. D. Kuebler, 17, 291 Versity Avenue, Penns Neck, paid $30 for failure to have a license in his possession and operating a car without tail lights. Y. H. Higashi, 47, 104 North Stanworth, paid a $25 fine for careless driving.

$53,000,000 SOUGHT

By University. Princeton University hopes to raise $53,000,000 during the next three years, President Robert F. Goheen announced to 1,467 graduates Saturday at the university's 45th annual Alumni Day luncheon in Dillon Gym. The campaign will be the biggest single fund drive ever undertaken by Princeton.

Of the total, Dr. Goheen said, 30 million will be used for plant improvements and new buildings, 20 million is earmarked for endowments, faculty salary increases and new professorships, and 3 million will be used as working capital. The campaign, named "53 Million for Princeton," will be headed by James F. Oates Jr. of New York, one of the university's charter trustees.

Mr. Oates told the alumni that $4,368,489.88 has already been pledged toward the drive by the trustees. Meanwhile, Macpherson Raymond, chairman of the Annual Giving campaign, a separate yearly drive among graduates for unrestricted funds, announced that $1,300,000 was collected for this campaign over the past year.

Mr. Raymond said he was "fully confident" that last-minute donations would put the total over last year's record Annual Giving total of $1,331,000. He said also that he expected last year's percentage participation among all alumni of 71.8 will be surpassed.

THREE LOSE LICENSES

For Excessive Violations. Three residents of Princeton have had their drivers licenses revoked by the Department of Motor Vehicles for excessive violations under the State's point-system.

They include Charles Rendule, 39, 15 Leigh Avenue, three speeding convictions, four-month revocation; and Robert Wood, 29, 229 Varsity Avenue, Penns Neck, three speeding, two-month revocation.

SCHOOL CHANGES LISTED

By Township Board. The Township Board of Education has tentatively approved the establishment next year of sixth grade classes at Johnson Park, Littlebrook and Riverside schools, which have previously conducted only kindergarten through fifth grade instruction. Kindergarten through eighth grade classes would be retained at Valley Road School under the new plan.

The physical set-up at Valley Road, the Board feels, is better equipped for the departmental needs of the two top grades. Adding sixth grade facilities to the neighborhood schools, however, would reduce the number of children requiring transportation by about 200 and increase administrative efficiency.

In voting preliminary adoption of the plan, the Board stressed that there must be flexibility of school assignments in order to control class size, prevent overcrowding and permit the most efficient use of teachers. The whole new program, which is supported by the administration and by the special committee on pupil allocation headed by Mrs. Robert Sinkler, will be open to public discussion at the Board's next regular meeting, March 19.

Tentative district boundaries under the new plan:

● Johnson Park School will serve the area west of Cherry Hill Road and north and west of a line following the State Road to the Borough line, then north and west of the Borough line, Mercer Street and Princeton Pike.

● Littlebrook School will serve the entire area east of North Harrison Street north of the Borough line and north of the Princeton-Kingston Road, plus the area east of Cherry Hill Road and north of Mount Lucas Road.

● Riverside School will serve the area south of Mercer Street, south of the Borough line and south of the Princeton-Kingston Road.

● Valley Road School will serve a triangular area north of the Borough line, west of North Harrison Street, east of Bayard Lane and southeast of a line following the State Road to Cherry Hill and then following Mount Lucas Road to Ewing Street.

Mr. Stewart received a Bachelor of Science degree in architecture from Princeton and then abandoned architecture for the theater and the movies. Music Unappreciated

William B. Williams, disc jockey for New York's WNEW, last week offered this verbal essay on music appreciation in Princeton. Commenting on the College Bowl TV quiz program, in which Princeton undergraduates competed against a panel from Georgetown, he mused:

"The boys were asked to identify Count Basie's 'Jumping at the Woodside,' and after a full chorus had been played, one bright Princeton lad raised his hand. 'That,' he declared, 'is Guy Lombardo!'

"All they could do," Mr. Williams intoned, "was take away his Ivy crew cut."

SOUNDS THAT PLEASE

Chamber Orchestra Plays. The 22 young members of the New Chamber Orchestra of Philadelphia played their strings on Monday night and produced an evening of light and charming chamber music beautifully performed. Nicholas Harsanyi of Princeton was the conductor and Edward Cone of Princeton was the piano soloist.

Mr. Harsanyi divided his program equally between the 18th and 20th centuries, avoiding the usual chronology. He began with the little Mozart Divertimento in D Major, K. 136 and went straight from Mozart to Hindemith and the "Four Temperaments."

In the Divertimento, Mr. Harsanyi gave the audience an Allegro and Presto that were clear, without a trace of furriness. The andante was warm and lovely.

Edward Cone performed as soloist in Hindemiths engaging work, but his playing was subordinate to the orchestra because "Four Temperaments" was not really written with a solo piano in mind. Mr. Cone and the orchestra evoked a "Melancholic" that moped pleasantly, a "Sanguine" that waltzed deliciously and a "Choleric" that growled with delightful ferocity. "Phlegmatic" was—phlegmatic.

After the intermission, Mr. Cone appeared as a true soloist, this time playing the Concerto in D Minor by Bach. Although he seemed most at home in the modern work the looks rather like the young Shostakovich), he played Bach with genuine feeling for phrasing and line.

Mr. Cone has fingers that can fly and sometimes he outraced Mr. Harsanyi's beat, but in the first bars of the Adagio, where "togetherness" really matters, he was with the orchestra all the way. This Adagio was, to this listener, Mr. Cone's success of the evening. With the scherzo-like Allegro, the Princeton pianist brought the Concerto to a splendid conclusion.

For its final selection, the New Chamber Orchestra played the 11 short, light-hearted variations that Benjamin Britten wrote on a theme of Frank Bridge's. Opening with an Adagio that has echoes of Vaughn-Williams, the "Variations" proceed through a melange of musical forms, all of them handled with gaiety and the gentle edge of satire.

Monday night's audience responded most warmly to the little "March," to the Aria Italiana with its vibrant, strummed strings, to the satirical "Viener Walz", to a "Moto Perpetuo" that took less than a minute to play, and to a chattering "Fugue and Finale."

ANTIQUARIES TO PLAY

Pro Musica Next on Series B. Early music of Flanders and Spain will be played in McCarter Theater Monday at 8:30 when Pro Musica appears in concert. The offering is the fourth in Series B of the Princeton University concerts.

Pro Musica's aim is to recreate early music as faithfully as possible and so the group uses a collection of old instruments or careful reproductions. These instruments include the psaltery, rebec, portative organ, viol, recorder and bell carillon. The performers consist of six singers, including the counter-tenor Russell Oberlin, and four instrumentalists. The singers can also play instruments.

The first part of the program will consist of Flemish music of the 15th and 16th centuries; a set of dances by Tielman Susato, excerpts from the Missa Carminu of Heinrich Isaac, and several motets, chansons and canons by Josquin des Pres.

For the second half of the evening, Pro Musica will offer excerpts from de Morales Missa de Beata Virgine and a group of songs and ballads from the Spanish renaissance. The program will conclude with pieces for keyboard and lute by Diego Ortiz and Antonio de Cabezon.

JOINT CONCERT SCHEDULED

By Smith and Princeton. The Princeton University Orchestra will be joined by the Smith College Orchestra in a joint concert sponsored by the Friends of Music at Princeton. The concert will be given this Sunday at 3:15 at McCarter Theater. It is open to the public without charge.

The soloist for the afternoon will be Robert Freeman, graduate student in music at Princeton. He will play Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3, Opus 37. The program will also include Wallingford Riegger's "Dance Rhythms", Opus 58, Milhaud's "Suite Francaise" and Gluck's overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis." The Princeton University orchestra is under the direction of Nicholas Harsanyi and the Smith Orchestra under the direction of Marion De Ronde.

TOP BRASS

University Band Will Play. The first formal concert of the season by the Princeton University Band will be given next Friday, March 6, at 8 p.m. in McCarter Theater, Robert Leist will conduct.

The Band, which consists entirely of undergraduates, is a smaller version of the marching band that performs at all Princeton football games. For the McCarter concert, the Band has chosen Bucker's Apollo March and Holst's First Suite in E Flat. John Adee, freshman, will then be featured in Draper's Melody for Trombone and the first half of the concert will conclude with Ward's Jubilation Overture.

The second half of the program will consist of Grundman's "Music for a Carnival," the Agnus Dei from Bizet's "Arlesienne Suite," Nagel's "Trumpets of Spain," and a number called "Burlesque" based on themes from Shostakovitch's Ninth Symphony. Selections from "Song of Norway," will conclude the concert, which is open to the public without charge.

Report from THE MAYOR

Coming Attraction. Princeton will soon have a chance to see the new and important addition to its fire-fighting equipment. Fire company mechanics Bill Hussey and Carl Bowen will fly to Lansing, Mich., this week for two days of orientation to the new pumper equipped with the most modern fire-fighter, high pressure fog.

At noon on Friday, the men will start the long trip home from the John Bean Division factory of the Food Machinery and Chemical Corporation. Considerable interest in this new equipment has been shown by fire officials from many Jersey towns. Fire Commissioner Mather reports that this is another important "first" for our Princeton Department.

A Budget Reminder. Copies of the municipal budget are available at Borough Hall for anyone who would like to study the items in advance of the public hearing scheduled for Tuesday, March 10, at 8 p.m. At the hearing the Mayor will translate the dry dollar figures into some simple charts geared to program and purpose.

This is one of the most important Council agenda items each year. It affects each of us, not only from a financial standpoint, but in terms of our everyday living and the important local government services which we sometimes take for granted.

Not A Clerical Error. Mayors are involved in many official chores that go beyond the day to day management of municipal matters. Last week was no exception.

Many Princeton residents journeyed to Trenton to support the March of Dimes Benefit Fashion Show, and found their Mayor among the many public officials "modeling" the latest styles. Despite the cold weather, it was a "cabana set" with gay blue swim trunks that the Mayor displayed.

This turned out to be the only item that would fit when the store manager, mistakenly sensing a clerical error in the measurements, said "Who ever heard of a Mayor with a 26-inch waistline?" Everyone had some good laughs in a good cause.

Open House. This week's "Tell It to the Mayor!" session was scheduled for Wednesday. The schedule for March will call for these regular meetings on each of the four March Thursdays: the 5th, 12th, 19th and 26th. As usual, the hours will be 7 to 10 p.m. at the Borough Hall and no appointment is necessary.

Last week's visitors brought some suggestions that contained real food for thought for Council and for the Planning Board. One major suggestion: that the off-street parking requirements be met either by providing the space or, as an alternative, by paying in cash the equivalent of the required spaces which would then be developed under municipal auspices as part of a planned program.

This seems to be under study in towns throughout the country. The Internal Revenue Director has ruled that assessments for off-street parking are tax-deductible business items.

Lower Merion Township in Pennsylvania is considering a plan for contributions toward the cost of municipal off-street parking facilities on a shared basis. "Certificates of participation" would be issued and then accepted in lieu of parking spaces when the contributor chooses to remodel, expand or rebuild. What do you think?

IT'S NOT 1960 YET, BUT . . . Mrs. Marion McCloskey and Samuel R. Willard point out that the Presidential election is still a long way off, but both have some thoughts on how they would like to vote. or Mr. Willard, Sen. John F. Kennedy seems to be the best man. Mrs. McCloskey wishes she could vote for President Eisenhower again. To see how others feel, read below. (Photo by Alan Richards)

Question of the Week

Question: Looking ahead, for whom would you like to vote for President of the United States next year?

Location: Around town.

Joseph F. Cox, 20 Fairview Avenue, Penns Neck, salesman. Maybe Meyner, just because he's my home governor and he's been a good one. He's young enough and I guess he's got the smarts.

Mrs. Charles R. Erdman III, 73 Marion Road East, housewife. Nixon, because I am a Republican. He has been a good vice-president and I think we should have a young man. He's honest and competent. Ike has had a lot of faith in him and that's good enough for me.

Samuel R. Willard, 80 Nassau Street, proprietor of the Nassau Pharmacy. I think I might go for young Kennedy. I think he has the experience and the ability both and I've been impressed with the job he's done in the Senate.

Mrs. Catherine Maddalon, 286 Alexander Street, housewife. Governor Meyner, because, first of all, I am a Democrat. I think he's the man. He's doing a very good job as governor.

Mrs. Marion McCloskey, R.D. 1, Cranbury, saleslady. I wish I could vote for the same one that's in — Eisenhower. He's done as well as the rest of them.

William Ebenstein, 120 Fitz-Randolph Road, professor of politics, Princeton University. It depends on who the candidates are. If I had my free choice, Senator Humphrey or Senator Symington. Humphrey, for his stand on domestic major issues of domestic policy. Symington, for his interest and experience in national defense.

Mrs. Norbert A. Considine Jr., Ridge Road, Kingston, housewife. My current choices are Nixon and Kennedy. If you asked me for a preference between them, I'd have to say I'm a Republican and if the rest of the situation backed it up, I'd vote for Nixon.

Michael A. Drobeck, 224-C Harrison Street, electronic technician. I haven't given it much thought, but I'd lean a little more to the Democratic side. For me it would probably be Meyner or Kennedy. I do think Meyner has done a good job as governor.

Mrs. Henry Halpern, 24 Clover Lane, housewife. I was all for Rockefeller until this awful [illegible] situation. My husband is a commuter and this has just ruined Rockefeller for us. But I guess he's still the only choice I'm entertaining.

Mrs. Robert Griffin, Princeton Avenue, Rocky Hill, housewife. Well, let's see who might be running. I think it might be Meyner and Rockefeller. I'm more read up on Governor Meyner than I am on Rockefeller, but I feel Rockefeller might be used to too much money. The country is spending too much money already — too much foolish money for limousines and the best of everything for officials. We need more economy. Meyner would be the better man, in my opinion.

Thoughts Turn To Voting

Although the Presidential election is still 18 months away, voters were reminded this week that political planning is already in full swing as both major parties entered into serious negotiations for national convention sites. Earlier indications were that both parties leaned toward the West Coast for their quadrennial pow-wows, but Philadelphia has lately developed into an important contender.

The parties would prefer, of course, to hold their meetings in the same city, since some communications and equipments costs could then be shared. Because of this, a solid commitment to a particular city by one group would strongly influence a similar decision by the other.

Races for the Presidential nomination are wide open in both parties. Since President Eisenhower is constitutionally ineligible to run again, some observers felt that Vice-President Nixon had the Republican nomination sewn up a year ago. Nelson Rockefeller's whopping victory in last fall's New York gubernatorial race, however, has made "Rocky" a man to watch in the G.O.P. competition. Most popular Democrats, according to public opinion polls, are Sen. John Kennedy (Mass.), New Jersey Governor Robert B. Meyner, Sen. Hubert Humphrey (Minn.) and Adlai Stevenson.

WHAT'S UP THERE? On this particular occasion, not much except rain. But Princeton citizens who visit the University Observatory get a lecture on astronomy even if weather precludes star-gazing. Recent rainy-night talks have covered planetary motion, satellites and satellite terminology and the features of the moon. Andy Jefferson, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jefferson, and Ray Sweazey look through the telescope just to see if the rain has stopped. Astronomer Emil Polak looks on.

Topics Of The Town

THE SKY'S THE LIMIT

For Amateur Astronomers. The University Observatory has added a new feature to its regular "Open House" nights.

For many years, the University has opened its Prospect Avenue observatory and telescope to the public on regular occasions so that children and adult amateur astronomers can peer at the craters of the moon or discover for themselves that there really is a ring around Saturn.

But New Jersey nights are not always clear. On too many occasions, astronomers have sent disappointed star-gazers home because there was nothing to see through the telescope but drizzle. Now, if there is fog, rain or snow, the astronomer in attendance gives a half-hour lecture, with slides, and nobody goes home completely disappointed.

The current astronomer-lecturer is Emil Polak, associate professor of mathematics and astronomy at Bucknell, now doing graduate work at the University.

How High the Moon. On a recent cloudy night, Mr. Polak found himself faced with about 70 uniformed Cub Scouts and their Den "mothers" and "fathers" all of whom hoped for a peek through the 10-inch Clark refractor telescope. (There were also many non-Scout adults; however, most audiences are juvenile. Adult groups interested in the observatory may make special arrangements to attend.)

With a group — the temptation is to say "gang" — like this, Mr. Polak faces a problem: an adult lecture on astronomy would be over Cub heads; a talk at the eight-year-old level would not be fair to adults. Mr. Polak keeps most of his talk simple enough for bright youngsters (which is about adult level in astronomy these days), and tantalizes children and adults with questions that astronomers themselves have not yet solved.

In a lecture on the moon, for example, he tells his audience that scientists wonder about the cracks and crevices on the moon's surface, and ask themselves why the larger craters have rays. "What would you scoop up?" he asks, and explains why astronomers believe that you would scoop up a handful of powdery dust.

At these evening lectures, the pale sleepy children are sometimes more interested in slides than in talk, but generally a young audience is a "gee-whiz" audience, and Mr. Polak encourages questions.

"Could you float on the moon?" "If you lit a candle, would it go out?"

And even a four-year-old, snug on his father's lap with teddy bear under one arm, puts up his free arm to ask a question: "Does the sun shine on the moon?"

More in April. The Observatory will not hold Open House in March because the weather is too variable and, pleasant though the lectures are, they are not a complete substitute for the telescope. When April comes, Mr. Polak hopes to show the moon and such landmarks of the sky as the double star, Mizar and Alcor, in the Big Dipper; the nebulae in Orion, the star cluster in Hercules and the tiny smoke ring called the Lyra Nebula. The April date will be announced publicly late in March.

LOOK, MAW, IG HANDS!

Five Typewriters Go at Once. Five automatic typewriters that operate like player pianos form the core of the mailing operations that are carried on by the Wengel Service Corporation, 90 Nassau.

Sales letters, solicitations for funds or memberships, convention "come-ons"—all of these are grist for the automatic machines that can turn out 300 single-spaced one-page letters each day. These letters are so carefully done that they give the impression of an individually typed message and if the client so desires, the typewriters can be set so that a name or order number is inserted into the body of the letter.

The typewriters use perforated sheets like the rolls on a music box or player piano. Perforations are made on a special machine that looks like an 1890 typewriter.

The girl in charge of the machines makes her "masters" on this machine and then puts them into the automatic typewriters. She sits within a circle of typewriters and she may have two or three different business letters clacking away at the same time. When she hears a machine stop, she swivels her chair and types in the salutation, the date or whatever is needed to make the letter timely and individual. She can even insert dictating symbols at the bottom of the letter.

Wengel service corporation was founded in 1948 as an accounting service. It will handle accounting for the smallest (two or three employees) or the largest organizations, preparing and paying bills, tax returns and financial statements. Wengel also does mimeographing, varityping and addressing by Addressograph plates for clubs, organizations and business firms.

HECKETT JOINS FIRM

Will Analyze Projects. Eric F. Heckett of Butler, Pa., has joined the Princeton marketing and opinion research firm of Benson & Benson Inc., Lawrence E. Benson, president, announced this week. His duties will include project planning and analysis.

Mr. Heckett graduated with honors from Princeton University in 1950. He is a member of the American Marketing Association, the American Iron and Steel Institute and the Writers Guild. His former employers include Look Magazine and Haraco, a manufacturer of heavy industrial goods. He will live at 292 Ridgeview Road.

SHORT NOTES

On Business. Lenhart and Company, 14 Witherspoon Street, has been named advertising and sales promotion agency for Standard Fire Alarm & Signal Inc., Jenkintown, Pa. The company makes an automatic, self-contained fire siren for homes, factories, boats and so on.

A symposium on the properties and potentials of organic, melt-spun fibers will be held in New York on March 23 and 24 of the 29th Annual Meeting of Textile Institute. Dr. John H. Dillon, director of the Institute, says that the presentation will be designed to interest both textile scientists and industry executives. Dr. Howard J. White, Jr., director of research for the Institute, and senior members of his staff will present the Institute's research accomplishments of the past year.

Photographs of Nyack Junior High School, Nyack, N. Y. a school designed by Fulmer and Bowers, were displayed at last week's convention of the American Association of School Administrators in Atlantic City. The school was chosen to illustrate economical, high-quality contemporary school design.

Higher Wages Sought

A minimum wage bill reflecting an increase five times the minimum of 20 years ago and designed to include workers in industries and businesses not heretofore affected has the full approval of New Jersey Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr. Mr. Williams, member of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee and a co-sponsor of the bill, believes that the proposed $1.25 minimum wage should supplant the $1.00 minimum which is "even less adequate than the original 25 cents was in 1939."

Retail store workers in particular come under the category of those not already protected, as well as some hotel workers, certain construction and railway transit, wholesale trade, laundry and drycleaning workers.

Joining Mr. Williams in urging passage of such a bill is Carl Holderman, New Jersey Commissioner of Labor and Industry. Mr. Holderman would also extend minimum wage coverage to certain groups of farm workers. So great is the competition in many states, particularly for seasonal migrant labor, that the Commissioner believes that only Federal action can bring a solution to the problem.

EARTH'S FACE ON VIEW

In Gift to University. Travelers planning a trip to outer space in the future can have a preview of what they will see looking back at the earth by visiting Princeton University's Guyot Hall. A six-foot, three-inch plastic globe reproducing the earth's geographical face has been given to the University's Department of Geology by Carl M. Loeb and Henry A. Loeb of New York, both Princeton alumni.

According to Prof. Glenn L. Jepsen, Sinclair Professor of Geology, the globe represents the highest degree of contoured accuracy yet achieved and is the first of its kind to be made available to a University for teaching purposes. Scaled at one inch to equal 106 miles, the earth is shown at the height of summer vegetation with ocean depths and the most recent land forms of Antarctica as revised by cartographers of the International Geophysical Year.

Prototypes of the sphere were exhibited at the National Academy of Science in Washington and the United States Pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair. Technical details of the globe include its material, epoxy-reinforced fiberglass laminate, and the fact that when inclined at the earth's angle of 23½ degrees it rotates on its axis once every four minutes.

Why do folks smile so often when they phone?

For the same reason they smile when they meet friends, or someone stops in to see them. When you think of it, most of your phone calls are as friendly as that—you're catching up on the news, making arrangements, or just relaxing with someone you like. Naturally, you smile a lot because phoning is fun—one of the reasons why today's low-cost telephone service is such a bargain.

HE CAN WIELD RIFLE

Professor Commands Battalion. When George F. Jones, 42, assistant professor of Germanic languages and literature at Princeton University, calls for order in his classroom, his students respond with alacrity. They know that the soft-spoken professor doubles in brass as Lt. Col. Jones, commander of the Third 155mm Howitzer Battalion of the United States Marines in Trenton.

Professor Jones, whose speech retains strong hints of his Savannah, Ga., upbringing, showed no leanings toward the military life until he was in his twenties. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Emory University, he was at Oxford University as a Rhodes scholar, planning a career as "a gentleman scholar," when World War II broke out.

Deciding that scholarship had to give way to more pressing pursuits, he returned to the United States and volunteered for the Marines. That branch of the armed forces was attractive to him, he says, "because I had a brother who was a naval officer and a brother who was an Army officer and I didn't want to get under their command." He saw action in Guadalcanal, Vella Savella, Bougainville, the Philippines, Okinawa and Japan and rose rapidly in the ranks.

After the war, Professor Jones resumed his studies, first at Columbia University and then in Zurich, Switzerland. He taught for a year at Emory, returned to Columbia for his Ph.D. in German literature and came to Princeton in 1949.

He was awarded an Oliver Ellsworth Bicentennial Preseptorship, which enabled him to study in Munich in 1954 and 1955. A prolific author, Professor Jones has written a score of scholarly articles and his latest book, "Honor in German Literature," has been accepted for publication by the German languages series of the University of North Carolina.

"I became interested in the German language," he recalls, "when I found a pile of books in the attic at home with my grandfather's name on them. They interested me and I was told they were in German. In any case, it worked out very well because it was the custom in the South after the War Between the States for young men to study in Europe and not in the North, where the abolitionists were."

VERSATILE: George F. Jones, assistant professor of Germanic languages and literature at Princeton University, also commands a Marine battalion in Trenton. (See story this page.)

Professor Jones is married to the former Joyce Cramer, an artist whose work is currently displayed at the il fiasco espresso shop. the Joneses live at 265 Ewing Street.

The professor finds he gets little ribbing from other faculty members on his military associations. "They look at it with mixed emotions," he says, "but mostly they're indifferent."

Ritenour, 209 Moore Street, has attended two western church conferences in his capacity of Executive Director of the Department of Church Building and Architecture, National Council of Churches. SECOND TIME AROUND
Tigers Hope to Turn Tables. Can home-court surroundings offset a 12-point superiority that one team proved over another in the first meeting? Princeton's entry in the Ivy basketball derby, now a length behind defending champion Dartmouth as the two cynic pell-mell into the stretch, is fervently hoping for an affirmative answer.

Having lost to the Indians, 71 to 59, at Hanover last Saturday, the Tigers will be hoping to turn the tables when the teams meet again this Friday. Game-time in Dillon Gymnasium will be 8 o'clock, and for once this season, the apathy that has marked the Tigers' trail upwards should be dispelled by a sell-out crowd.

Dartmouth never trailed at Hanover, leading 6-0 at the outset, 21-11 with ten minutes gone and by 41-33 at the half. Princeton crept within two points before the intermission and within four midway through the second period, but no closer.

Superior rebounding (51-41) and a better defense won for the Green as the visitors outshot the tall Indians on their own floor. Princeton caged one more field goal (25 to 24) than the defending champions, but was no better than 9 for 19 from the foul line. When Dartmouth hit on 23 of 31 free throws, that made all the difference. The losers were called for 22 personals, far above their season's average and seven more than the Indians.

The New Hampshire quintet isn't a one-man team, but there are indications that if 6-7 Rudy LaRusso can be stopped, Dartmouth would be hard pressed to win. He accounted for 18 points in the first half and dominated the rebounding all evening.

LaRusso was cut to four in the final period and eventually fouled out. Belz also made 22 and preceded his opponent to the sidelines with five fouls. He has a 14 point lead (215 to 201) over the big Indian from Brooklyn for the individual scoring lead in the Ivy race, and each has three games left.

That the Indians have more than one scoring threat when the pressure is greatest is shown by the 38 points credited to Walt Sosnowski and the 15 that Gary Vandeweghe made. Each total was well above the season's average for this pair.

Coach Doggie Julian shuttled nine players back and forth, even resting LaRusso briefly in the second half. Lacking such bench strength, Cappy Cappon could only stay with his first five for a good 35 minutes, eventually substituting Drew Hyland for Art Klein and replacing Carl Belz with Don Swan when the former fouled out.

Tigers on the Spot. The pressure will be on the Tigers Friday, despite the fact that they will play in familiar surroundings. Riding with Dartmouth will not only be knowledge that they have beaten the Orange and Black once but that they have two shots left if needed: one this weekend and one—on a neutral court—if a playoff becomes necessary.

Both teams have two other games left and each must face Penn in the Palestra. Dartmouth goes there Saturday night while Princeton is entertaining Harvard. Next Wednesday, March 4, the Tigers travel to Philadelphia and Brown goes to Hanover to close out the Indians' regular season.

It is possible — but unlikely — that either of the front-running teams could be knocked off in its final two contests. However, a big Penn threat—Allen Schwait—broke his arm a fortnight ago and the Quakers are somewhat less of a problem without him. He took a 16.4 average to the sidelines.

Harvard made a lot of trouble for Princeton at Cambridge the night before the Tigers went to Hanover. They trailed by four in the first half before moving out to a 26-24 lead at the intermission.

The Crimson never got in front again but twice cut leads of eight points to three and lost by only five—61-56. The losers' George Harrington topped the scoring with 21 points, while Joe Burns had a 20 for the Tigers and Jim Brangan 17.

Carl Belz was held to 11, his lowest Ivy output thus year. The victory set the Princeton winning streak at 12 before it was snapped the following by Dartmouth, and the Tigers now have a chance to end the Indians' 14-game string.

SKATERS DISAPPOINTED
Near Victory Reduced to Tie. Less than four minutes to go in Saturday's game against Harvard Princeton's patched-up hockey team held a surprising 5-3 lead over the defending Ivy champions. The margin had been achieved despite the need to use reserve goalie Mickey Michel and the enforced absence of Pete Cook, first-line center, with a temperature.

Cook started but withdrew shortly after the opening whistle, necessitating more of the constant personnel juggling that Dick Vaughan has had forced on him all season. Michel gave a fine account of himself on numerous occasions, and the shots that earned Harvard the 6-all deadlock were more chargeable to a tired defense than to him.

A fabulous four-goal first period got Princeton away to its fastest start in years. Harvard began as if on its way to a rout when it beat Michel on its first shot, just 42 seconds after the opening whistle, but the Tigers refused to panic.

They drew even less than a minute later, went ahead inside of four minutes and beat the Crimson goalie twice more in the

CARL BELZ

Tiger Basketball Captain

When Princeton's basketball team takes the floor against Dartmouth in Dillon Gym Friday night, it will have a chance of drawing even with the defending champions less than a week before the season ends. The fact that the Tigers are that close at all is the major surprise of the current Ivy campaign.

When the race began last December, all eight coaches picked Dartmouth to repeat and most named Cornell as the best bet to chase the timber-topping Indians down to the wire. Yale might be in the picture, too, they conceded; Princeton, at best, stood a good chance of finishing in first division.

In between last December and the third week in February, the Princeton quintet improved steadily. A mid-western trip against Big Ten opposition tagged it with two of the three losses charged against it, but beginning December 30, the Tigers prowled victoriously. The modern record for consecutive victories was tied and then broken as 12 straight victims fell to the Orange and Black.

Regaining the form that made him an all-Ivy choice as a sophomore was Carl Belz, now captain of the Tiger quintet. Recurring ankle sprains had hobbled him frequently as a junior, and his point production fell off markedly.

But as the current season progressed, Belz steadied his play to the point where he hit consistently in double figures and gained visibly in defensive ability. With 20 games played, he has totalled 359 points and last week at Hanover, became the second Princeton player in history to top 1,000. Bud Hanbested (1,272) was the first; Carl has 1,011 with three regular-season games and possible playoffs left.

Carl's surge has made him the leader in the individual Ivy race with 215—14 more than Dartmouth's Rudy LaRusso. Although each will subordinate his play to the team effort on Friday, the battle for scoring honors will add drama to the occasion.

Topping much the same Dartmouth personnel that compiled a great 22-5 record last year and went into the third round of NCAA competition before its elimination is no easy chore. The Tigers will have to produce their best basketball of the season Friday night to draw even with the Green—but the fact that they have a shot at it at all is tremendously to the credit of this dark horse entry that Carl Belz is piloting down the stretch.

same round. Lance Odden, a Princeton resident and PCD alumnus, caged two goals for the Tigers; the steadily-improving Hugh Scott made one goal and assisted on all three of the others Princeton racked up in this round.

The teams traded goals in the second period, Princeton maintaining its superiority of two when Johnny McBride fed Johnny Hill in picturesque fashion just seven seconds before the buzzer. The first 16 minutes of the final round were scoreless, with the Tigers playing defensive hockey and Harvard failing to dent it.

At 16:34 and again at 17:35, however, the Crimson's ability to control the puck in Princeton ice for long stretches paid dividends. The game went into overtime, the outmanned Tigers got off only one shot at the Harvard cage in the last ten minutes but Michel kicked out six and the tie became final.

It was a tremendous performance by the short-handed Princetonians, ending at 11 the string of Harvard victories over Princeton in the sport. The Tigers were at New Haven Wednesday night and face Cornell in Baker Rink at 2 this Saturday.

OTHER SPORTS

Titles Within Reach. Jimmy Reed's wrestlers, another team plagued all year by injuries, will face Yale in Dillon Gym Saturday at 2:30. Victory will give them the Big Three title, in view of their 14-12 triumph over Harvard at Cambridge last weekend.

Captain Bill Macaleer is unbeaten this season at 157 pounds. Hopes are that the Tigers will have a heavyweight entry; in the past three weeks, injuries have forced them to wrestle a man 40 to 50 pounds lighter than his opponent.

Victory over Yale at New Haven this Saturday would virtually clinch the Ivy championship for Stan Sieja's fencers. Princeton's swimming team will also be in New Haven, inevitably ticketed as the 179th straight victim in the long string credited to the Blue.

The squash team journeys to Hanover to meet Dartmouth but is out of the running for the Ivy title. However, unbeaten Steve Vehslage, a sophomore, will be a leading contender for the intercollegiate championship to be decided here in March.

TWO GAMES REMAINING

For Little Tigers. Princeton High School's basketball team will journey to Hightstown on Friday and to Trenton High on Monday for its final contests of the season. The Little Tigers will be making a last-ditch attempt to better their record to date of 13 losses against only three victories.

The 13th defeat was inflicted last week by Lawrenceville in a 52-36 rout on the Little Tigers' home court. Princeton gave the Larries a run for their money in the first stanza and jumped to a three-point half-time advantage.

Hopes for a Tiger victory, however, were dashed in a final period scoring splurge by Lawrenceville, led by Fres Seckel, who garnered 12 of his 15 points in that half. Jim Barbour paced the PHS scoring with 12 markers. In the jayvee preliminary, Lawrenceville defeated the Blue and White reserves, 54-52.

MRS. CONSTABLE WINS

Fifth National Title. Mrs. W. Pepper Constable of Rosedale Road won the United States Women's Squash Racquets Championship for the fourth straight year at Haverford, Pa., last weekend. Mrs. Constable thus became the first player in the 31-year history of the tournament to win the title five times.

She defeated Mrs. Sheila MacIntosh of Camberly, England, 15-8, 17-18, 15-12, 15-9, in the 40-minute final round at the Merion Cricket Club. Mrs. Constable had beaten Mrs. MacIntosh earlier in five games in the New England championships and in straight games in the New Jersey championships at the Pretty Brook Tennis Club.

ST. PAUL'S FIVE SPLITS

Loses by 1, Wins by 36. St. Paul's School basketball team divided its last two games, dropping a 52-51 decision to Witherspoon before trouncing Our Lady of Sorrows, a Trenton quintet, 57 to 21. Home contests are scheduled this Friday and Saturday against St. Mary's and Cathedral.

St. Paul's overcame an early 8-4 deficit to take a 31-31 halftime lead against Witherspoon. It was 41-39 for St. Paul's as the final period got under way, but with the clock running out, Witherspoon regained the advantage.

A technical foul called against St. Paul's was converted by the victors, giving them a 52-50 margin. Ten seconds were left as Ed DiMagna of St. Paul's stole the ball but he was fouled before he could shoot and the conversion made it a 52-51 final. Danny Corvino's 24 points for the losers paced both teams, while Britten was high for Witherspoon with 18.

In the game against Our Lady of Sorrows St. Paul's was held to a 23-18 half-time advantage but broke the contest open after the intermission. The victors lossed in 31 points while limiting their opponents to three. Corvino was high again with 18, DiMagna and John Thomas adding 14 apiece.

BOWLING NOTES

"B" Loop Ends in Tie. National Guard put on a last-minute scoring show at Princeton Recreation Center this week to deadlock Jefferson Plumbing at 48 victories each as the second round of play in the "B" League drew to a close. The tie will necessitate a play-off between the two squads. High individual scorers were Harry Kinney, 234; Bob Cifelli, 220; Joe Pfister, 220; and Mike Pinelli, 217.

In the "A" loop, Shelton Motors, tied last week with Farr Hardware at 12-all, posted four wins to assume undisputed possession of the league lead. Farr Hardware, Kase Kleaners and Knights of Columbus, each listing 14 triumphs, went into a tri-cornered deadlock for second place. Individual standouts included Fred Goeke, 221; Phil West, 223; and Earl Smith, 209.

Another tie was broken in the Tri-County Firemen's League, where Princeton Co. No. 1 took over first position with 28 wins. Kingston, fifth last week with 14 wins, added a phenomenal 10 victories during the week to leap to the No. 2 slot. Princeton Junction, which had been tied for first place with 20 wins, posted no victories and slipped into a three-way third place deadlock with Belle Mead and Lawrenceville.

The Industrial loop was thrown into a first-place tie when Nassau Service posted six wins, against four for Wengryn Construction, to tie Wengryn at 12-all. Nassau Del is third, one victory behind. In the Princeton Women's League, Pin Pushers, listing 36 wins, maintained their four-game edge over the rest of the loop. Town Topics, sixth last week with 24 victories, added eight triumphs and took over second place.

The 5 Jills increased their total of victories to 40 and hung onto the lead position in the Women's Industrial League. The race tightened up, however, with Deckers and CiSelli's entering a second-place tie at 39-all, only one game behind the Jills. The Deckers turned in the week's high team game (877) and high team set (2,294).

Other noteworthy individual tallies: Frank Stofko, 213; Dick Anderson, 216; and Bill Bergen, 212, in the Tri-County Firemen's League; John Frazee, 223; Nick Scuderati, 179-211-217 (607); and Bruce Furguson, 213, in the Industrial League; Elizabeth Brown, 186, in the Princeton Women's loop; Joan Ainsworth, 188; Betty Steck, 186; Annn Amalfitano, 184; and Lillian Bun-

PHS QUINTET BEATEN

Loses 30-19 Half-Time Lead. A surging rally by Steinert High School's basketball team took a possible upset away from Princeton High Tuesday afternoon on the victors' court. The Little Tigers lost at the foul line as they matched the Spartans' 18 field goals.

A 19-point second quarter carried the Blue and White to a 30-19 lead at the intermission, but the third round opened the trapdoor as Steinert outscored PHS by a 3-to-1 ratio. The home forces tossed in 21 points while holding the Little Tigers to 7 and grabbed the lead for good. The Spartans then doubled Princeton High's output in the last period, netting 22 and allowing only 11. It was a 62-48 final.

From the free-throw line, the victors converted on 26 of 38 attempts. PHS, on the other hand, could make less than half of its foul shots — 12 of 25.

Jim Barbour paced Princeton High with 13 points, seven of them free throws. Tony Boccantuso returned to double figures with 12, but the loss was the Little Tigers' 14th in 17 games.

PCD SEXTET WINS, 9-1

Defeats Hill School Juniors. A 6-0 lead at the end of the first period allowed Princeton Country Day School's hockey team to coast to a one-sided triumph over the Hill School Juniors Tuesday at Pottstown, Pa. The losers averted a shutout with a second-period goal but Country Day ran the final margin to 9-1 for its sixth victory of the year against a single defeat.

Captain Steve Cook paced the scoring with four goals. Defenseman Charlie Stuart added a pair, while single tallies were credited to Alex Patton, Ario Alexander and Parkey Shearer. The Blue and White will go to Philadelphia Wednesday to meet the Wissahicken Hockey Club.

TWO LOSSES FOR HUN

Season Ends at 2-12. George Selleck's Hun School basketball team closed its season with a 2-12 slate after weekend losses to Tower Hill, 55-51, and Admiral Farragut Academy, 70-40. Both games were away.

The Tower Hill encounter was an overtime heartbreaker for the Red and Black. With three seconds left in the game and Tower Hill leading, 54-52, Hun's Tom Johnson, a Princeton resident, knotted the score at 54-all with a set shot from inside the foul line. The reprieve was only temporary, however, as Tower Hill connected with the winning marker from the penalty stripe in the overtime period.

Dave Robinson, Admiral Farragut's 6 foot, 6 inch forward, pumped in 29 points to pace his squad to its lopsided victory over the Johnny Huns. The outclassed Hun quintet fell behind, 19-7, in the first quarter and was unable to narrow the margin. Tom Horwich, with 14 markers, and John Seop, with nine, led the Hun scoring.

Earlier in the month, Hun bowed to Delbarton and Chestnut Hill. The season's lone triumphs were recorded against Bryn Athyn, in the season opener, and Pennington Prep.

SLALOM, ANYONE?

Ski Club to Meet. Group ski trips will be planned by the Princeton Ski Club this Thursday at 5:30. Non-members and beginning skiiers are invited to the Nassau Inn where cocktails and dinner are scheduled.

Club members and guests will go to Mount Snow, Vt., March 13-15 under the leadership of Ernest Gilmont. Instruction will be available to new skiiers then, according to Walter Brunner, club president. Excellent skiing conditions were reported at Mad River Glenn, Vt., where 20 Princeton skiiers spent Washington's Birthday weekend.

YOUNGSTERS COMPETE

For Rifle Awards. Eighty-nine members of the Princeton Junior Rifle Club, which includes both boys and girls, are competing for marksmanship prizes to be awarded at the annual Police Benevolent Association Youth Activities dinner on March 21. The prizes will be awarded in two categories to include novices and youngsters with more than a year's training in riflery.

The club's rifle team, which includes 15 boys in the senior group, stands among the top five squads in the Junior Delaware Valley Rifle League. Borough Patrolman John Markuson advises the club.

CAGE TWIN-BILL SET

In Trenton Saturday. The Trenton Colonials will meet South River in a State basketball league contest at 7:45 and the Harlem Magicians will play the Boston Shamrocks in a novelty basketball exhibition at 8:15 on Saturday at Notre Dame High School, Lawrenceville Road, Trenton.

Tickets are available at the Curry Ticket Agency in Trenton and at the high school. The line-up for the Harlem Magicians includes Marques Haynes, former dribbling wizard with the Harlem Globetrotters.

Topics Of The Town

Robbins, chairman; James Burnett, David Everett, Sam Rifkin and John Rossi. Walter Conover, Jr. will serve as trustee for a three-year term.

"GRADUATES" TO USHER

At Panel Discussion. Six young people who "graduated" from the League Nursery School in 1949 — the school's first year of operation — will usher at the school's 10th anniversary panel discussion at 8 next Monday in the Woodrow Wilson School conference room. The discussion topic is "American Education in the Future."

Ushers will include Martha Craig, John Bailey, Bryan Baker, Virginia Elmer, Neil Menand and Sally Schoch. Featured speakers on the panel are Dr. Steve Morris, coordinator of teacher education at Douglass College; Willard Thorpe, chairman of the English department at Princeton University; and John Turkevich, professor of chemistry at Princeton.

Mrs. John Criscitiello, chairman of the parents committee of the nursery school, will preside. A brief review of the school's first decade will be given by Mrs. Gordon Craig, its founder and head teacher. (See Woman of the Week.)

ALUMNAE GIFTS ASKED

For Smith College. The Smith College Club of Princeton is attempting this week to contact the 198 graduates of the college who live in the Princeton area in an effort to obtain contributions for the college's unrestricted fund. Director of the campaign in Princeton is Mrs. Barnwell Strait.

Area chairmen are Miss Eva Weber, Mrs. William Chamberlin, Mrs. John Butler, Mrs. Ellwood Godfrey, Mrs. John Davies and Mrs. Lincoln Day. Last year the total collected from alumnae across the country was $425,000. The money is used for plant maintenance and improvement of faculty and administrative salaries.

PAPER COLLECTION SET

Ask Residents' Cooperation. Princeton Post 76, American Legion, will hold its monthly paper collection on Sunday. Trucks will begin their tours of Princeton Borough and Township about 1 p.m.

Residents are asked to bind paper and cardboard securely in bundles tied with string or twine, and to leave them at the curb. Charles McHugh, chairman of the March drive, and the collection committee will meet at the Borough Garage next to the Hook and Ladder Firehouse on Harrison Street.

Despite the shortage of paper during the New York newspaper strike, the January and February collections proved to be larger than those of the same date the previous year, according to Henry A. Robertiello who headed those drives. The increase was attributed mainly to the cooperation of the Princeton community and to the favorable weather on collection days.

EDUCATION BOARD TO MEET

In Franklin Township. A special meeting of the Franklin Township Board of Education will be held Monday at the Grove Manor School at Highland and Pine Grove Avenues.

Scheduled to begin at 8, the meeting will deal with the need for a high school in the township. Related problems will also be discussed.

. . . . . What If They ARE Offering up to

$1.00 Each For Empty KENT Packs . . . . . .

Joe Windy

HERE ARE THE REASONS WHY I DO NOT SMOKE KENTS!

On practically every TV and radio show, in every newspaper and magazine, the KENT fellow keeps saying: "OF ALL LEADING FILTER CIGARETTES—KENT FILTERS BEST!" He is awful convincing this KENT fellow, but I still DON'T SMOKE KENTS!

My grandfather did not smoke KENTS, my father does not smoke KENTS, my Uncle Joe did not smoke KENTS (he passed away during the 1919 flu epidemic), my wife does not smoke KENTS, my eleven-year-old son does not smoke KENTS—so why should I smoke KENTS?

If I smoked anything, if my grandfather smoked anything, if my father, if my Uncle Joe, my wife, or my eleven-year-old son smoked anything, we probably would change to KENTS like everybody else—but we don't smoke anything, Camels, Chesterfields, or anything else to change from! This is sad.

If you have already changed to KENTS like we haven't, you are lucky and I hope you are not throwing away those empty KENT packs—I hear they are worth one dollar each!

I hear that the new furniture store in the Princeton Shopping Center—well, they are not exactly new— they have had a store in Flemington, N. J. for ten years and they are now on their second year in the Princeton Shopping Center—but I hear that this company, the BARDEN FURNITURE COMPANY, is allowing one dollar each for any empty KENT pack on the purchase of any item in their store, regardless of price! The Bardens have two beautiful stores but this sounds awful silly to me. However, here is what Bob Barden says:

"For a long time, we have wanted to do something for humanity. Something really big! We want to do something that will give everyone a good reason to remember us whenever they think of buying furniture or hear or see a KENT TV, radio or newspaper advertisement. We do not mind spending up to a million dollars on this SMOKE KENTS—THINK OF BARDEN idea, but here again we do not want to be selfish.

"We thought we would let KENT share in our good intentions as they must already be spending millions to put the idea over, so why should we duplicate the expenditure? And, of course, if we can save a million dollars in advertising, the greater value we can offer on furniture and we feel this is really doing something for humanity, also for our customers. And, to show their appreciation for what we are trying to do for humanity, we feel that everyone, from this time on, who smokes KENTS, sees, hears, or reads a KENT commercial should immediately think of the BARDEN FURNITURE COMPANY, Princeton Shopping Center and Flemington, N. J.

"We believe," Bob Barden explained further, "that we are the first retail chain of furniture stores with three stores, or less, to participate in a nationwide TV, radio and newspaper campaign of this magnitude—and please do not forget that we are offering, as an inducement for more people to change to KENTS, nearly four times as much for an empty KENT pack as a person pays for a full pack, and even KENT does not do this! We think we are doing our part. We do not know what we are going to do with a million empty KENT packs but, of course, we reserve the right to terminate this offer if we get to where we have more empty KENT packs than we do furniture, but for the time being and until further notice we will allow one dollar for any one empty KENT pack on the purchase of any one piece of merchandise in our store, regardless of price—only one empty pack will be accepted on any one purchase. We do not wish to over-indulge our generosity—just think of the BARDEN FURNITURE COMPANY, Flemington and Princeton Shopping Center, EVERY TIME you hear or see the following: 'OF ALL LEADING FILTER CIGARETTES—KENTS FILTER BEST!' "

The above is exactly what Bob Barden said to me. I cannot quite understand why they want to allow you that much for an empty KENT pack but that is their business, your good luck. There is a big furniture sale going on right now at the BARDEN STORES—they carry practically all of the better lines in their two stores—Sprague and Carleton, Drexel, Sealy, North Hickory, Broyhill, Bassett,—oh gosh! I can't remember how many lines they do carry—I don't smoke KENTS—do you happen to have an extra empty pack? I am interested in buying a BARCALOUNGER at BARDEN'S—I hear that the BARDEN STORES sell more BARCALOUNGERS than any other outfit in New Jersey—it's news to me, but maybe you had heard it before. SMOKE KENTS—THINK OF BARDEN FURNITURE COMPANY, PRINCETON SHOPPING CENTER.

News Of The CHURCHES

PLANNING AHEAD

At Rocky Hill. Trinity Episcopal Church at Rocky Hill is a small, trim old church with a large, bursting new congregation.

The Rev. Robert Smyth, part-time pastor of the church, has appointed a Building and Expansion Committee to study the problem of providing for the future of the growing congregation. The Committee consists of Miss Sue Rightmire, Griggstown; John Vey, Rocky Hill and George D. Wilkinson, Harlingen.

At present, the church has in hand $3,800; $1,000 each from three sources and $800 in a Building Fund. An anonymous donor has agreed to give $5,000 more if the church can match it. Teams have been formed and an "Every Member Canvass" has been launched to raise the necessary funds.

GROUND WILL NOT BE BROKEN UNTIL . . . Rosedale Chapel members plan to build a white frame parish house behind their white frame Chapel on Carter Road. But they will not break ground for it until they have the $30,000 it will take to complete the structure. So far, $23,000 has been subscribed and it is hoped that construction can begin this spring. Most of the money has come from church suppers. (Art work by Princeton Art Services)

The greatest need is for more space and newer equipment and the church has retained Henry Jandl, architect, to survey the building and report on what can be done to enlarge and modernize it. The church is heated with two small oil burners and if these were removed and a central heating system installed, 20 more people could be added to the 50 that can squeeze into the church now. More land may be bought for expansion, or double services may be instituted.

The building committee is asking for "singers and seamstresses, painters and pastry-makers, plumbers and preachers" who will donate their skills. Because the church has a week-end pastor, members may also take over such pastoral duties as visitation, teaching and the like. A questionnaire has been sent to all parishioners and its results will determine the assignment given to each.

BULLETIN NOTES

Speakers, Sales, Slides. Next guest speaker in the Princeton Jewish Center's Adult education program will be Mr. Gideon Shimoni speaking on "The Present Economic Situation in Israel." The meeting is at 8:30 Monday, March 2 at the Center. On Tuesday, Professor John Marks will continue the series with a talk on the prophet, Isaiah. Both lectures are open to the public.

Mrs. Chester McKinney will discuss "Workers Together with Christ" at a coffee hour meeting of the Princeton Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church. The meeting will be held in the church social hall Thursday, March 5 from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

The Unitarian Church will hold an auction this Saturday starting at 1 p.m. at the church grounds, corner of Cherry Hill and State Road, General chairman of the auction is Mrs. Lyman Spitzer, Jr. assisted by Mrs. W.
